Commission & Appointee Job Descriptions

Guidelines for Commission Chairpersons

“Last Spring (2010), GDC was asked by Coordinating Council to provide some guidance for Commission Chairs on how to lead a commission meeting because we realize that some people come into a commission never having led a meeting before. Also, this year several of our commission chairs are completely new to the commission. So, we are attempting to provide you with some general, basic guidelines for leading your commission and leading the meetings your commission will have. If you have questions or comments, please feel free to contact a member of GDC.”

1. Familiarize yourself with the purpose of your Commission
  - There is a general description of the purpose of each commission in the congregational directory that may be helpful.
  - What are the yearly activities of your commission?
  - What are the responsibilities of your commission?
  - It may be helpful to talk with the past chairperson of your commission to get more information on your commission if you haven't been on this commission before.
2. Meetings
  - Most commissions meet once a month (unless your commission determines otherwise)
  - Set the agenda for your meeting. Prepare this ahead of time so that you can hand out a copy to each person at the meeting.
  - Open your meeting with prayer. Some commissions also have a short devotional. Either way, this responsibility can be spread among all members of the commission.
  - If this is the first meeting of the year, determine which person will be the secretary
  - Review minutes of previous meeting.
  - Encourage participation of all members during the meeting. You, as chair, may need to question members directly to get their input.
  - Assign tasks/responsibilities to all members and hold persons accountable for completing those tasks.
  - Secretary is responsible to type up all minutes, distribute them to members by hard copy or email, and send them to the Church Secretary by email.
3. Finally, each commission is assigned an Elder to be a resource person for you and your commission.
